Strong Views Expressed For and Against Proposed Museum, Financing Questioned

by Mavis Fletcher

More than 50 Greenbelters (and one College Park resident) crowded the city council chambers on July 8 to give their opinions on the proposed museum to be established by the city's purchase of an original, government-built home from the 1930's. Thirty-four persons spoke for or against the project. Exactly half supported the museum unequivocally. Fourteen either directly opposed the museum or opposed any city participation in funding it. Three others tempered their opposition by calling for a referendum on the issue to get the voters' views. In addition, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld read a letter from Walter and Leonie Penney opposing the use of tax money for a museum.

Those opposed to city funds being used to purchase the museum building made their point repeatedly: the sponsors of the museum, in their view, have not given the public a clear idea of what their fund-raising capacity is and whether they will be able to sustain it on down the road in order to assure the public that the financial commitment of the city would be limited. Judging by the tough questions put to Sandra Barnes, Chair of the 50th Anniversary Committee, and Mary Linstrom, Co-Chair of the Museum Subcommittee, about the finances of the museum support group, the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM), the council members got the opposition's message.

Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White asked questions about the FOGM commitment to conduct operations of the museum and whether the group has a timetable with targeted amounts to be raised. Weidenfeld asked whether FOGM has a plan for helping fund the museum building, if possible, and for raising money to operate and staff the museum.

Linstrom reported that FOGM has almost 200 members and has raised $7500 with the single appeal it has undertaken to date. Barnes defended the achievements of the group, saying that she felt 200 members was a very successful result for a first try. She emphasized that a museum is a long-term commitment by the city and the community. She also mentioned plans to study some other small museums to see what makes them successful.

Museum Funds Budgeted

The 1986/87 Greenbelt budget allows for funds to purchase the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. unit at 10B Crescent with the funding spread over five years at $11,000 per year. Councilman Joseph Isaacs said that he understood that this 5-year plan was adopted to make it possible for FOGM to contribute to the capital outlays for the building.

The GHI home which has been offered for a museum is almost ideally located, according to Don Volk, vice-president of FOGM. It is an original masonry building; it is close to the Center, inner walkways, a playground and an underpass, all features of the original planned community; it is close to the library and visitors can use the library parking lot. Librarian Betty Allen, who is in charge of the library's Tugwell Room, said there would be "lots of things we could do in the Tugwell Room more effectively" with a museum nearby.

Supporter's Views

Richard Stevenson, a College Park resident, led off by saying he strongly supported the museum and handing Linstrom a check to back up his words. Al Herling pleaded the case of the museum eloquently. He pointed out that it is very difficult to raise money without an investment by the city to get the project started. He said the present has an "obligation to provide a vision to the future" and "to those who say 'manana,' I say the time is now."

Proponents of the museum included a surprisingly large number of museum professionals. In what must surely be the newest example of Greenbelt activism, Dr. Keith Winsell, who has lived in Greenbelt for one week, said that he felt that the museum is a worthy project which would be of interest to professional people. Winsell said that he is trained as a social historian.

Janie Mutchler, a fundraiser and member of FOGM pointed out that it is much easier to raise funds if the project has a permanent space which is historically correct. Alan Virta, a member of Prince Georges Historic Preservation Committee (but speaking for himself) noted that many people in East Greenbelt, where he lives, support the museum. He also said he was "delighted that the debate was focusing on dollars," since this ensures a small beginning which can be supported. Christina O'Boyle, who is on the professional staff of a museum, gave the opinion that the potential for success is present in Greenbelt.

Prospects for Success

The outlook for success of the museum was a subject of widely varying views. Steve Curtis, with his gift for colorful analogy, compared the museum to the city dial-a-ride bus which he described as a "$17 per ride bus service" and hoped the museum would not turn out to be a "$20 . . . per visit museum." He also expressed fears that the volunteer efforts would not last beyond 1987 and that GHI might eventually have to buy back something which did not work.

On the other hand, GHI President Margaret Hogensen enumerated a list of visitors from other parts of the U.S. and from abroad who came to study GHI and the Greenbelt planned community. For these visitors, she said, the museum would be an added attraction and of great interest. Leta Mach suggested that the museum would be the object of study by school children such as those whom she teaches in an educational enrichment class at Center School. For such children the museum would be a firsthand learning experience, she felt.

North End School Option

Several speakers suggested that the North End School might be a better site for a museum than a GHI home, particularly one as small as the proposed unit, which is a so-called 1½-bedroom dwelling. Lucille Jacoby pointed out that the unit might be too small to accommodate a group of 25-30 visitors. She also pointed out that access for the handicapped would be difficult. Other speakers, however, opposed consideration of North End School as a museum location. In reply to a question from Councilmember Antoinette Bram, Barnes said that only a GHI home would provide an authentic setting for a museum. Volk said that housing the museum in a GHI unit was the only way to give it the "feel" of the original Greenbelt. And on the subject of the city's financial commitment, Virta said that it would be "open-ended" in the North End School.

Several speakers suggested that the proposal be put to a referendum. Weidenfeld, however, noted that this could be suggested for any issue which came before the council and that way there would be a referendum every month or two. Isaacs noted that the previous council (of

Festival Notes

Outstanding Citizen

The thirteenth year of the annual award competition for Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen should be an especially lucky year for one Greenbelt resident. That is the person whose name will be announced during opening ceremonies of the Labor Day Festival on Friday evening and who, not until that moment, will know that he or she will become the Grand Marshall of the 1986 Labor Day Parade. The award winner will also receive a plaque, a savings bond and other gifts, as well as proclamations from city, county and state officials.

The Outstanding Citizen award, which is Greenbelt's highest honor, recognizes personal leadership and contributions that have benefited this community and its citizens.

Nominations may be made by filling out the accompanying form in the Greenbelt News Review or by using alternate forms which will be available at various locations within the city. Nominations from previous years may also be reactivated and may be updated if desired. To be eligible, nominations must be received by August 15.

Nominees must be Greenbelt residents. Current elected officials and political candidates are not eligible. City employees may be nominated only for activities for which the employee is not paid (excluding nominal payment).

The winning candidate will be chosen by an independent panel of Greenbelt citizens, who have already met to establish qualifications and to set this year's deadline. No deliberations will be held until after the deadline on August 15.

Photo Show

Photographers can begin planning to submit their photos to the annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Photo Show. Now is the time to take that winning photograph. The festival photo show committee is ready and willing to help young photographers. Young photographers (under 12) may submit any size photo up to and including 8 x 10 photographs, framed or unframed. Adult photographers need to submit 8 x 10 up to 16 x 20 photos which are ready to hang (framed and wired). A maximum of four photos will be accepted from each individual. The show will be judged and awards will be made in four categories: best black and white, best color, community favorite, and young photographer (under 12). For more information, call Jim Parker (345-9573).

Talent Show

Rehearsals for the Talent Show of the 1986 Labor Day Festival are getting underway. All Greenbelt residents, 18 years of age and under, are invited to participate. Anyone who can sing, dance, play a musical instrument, mime, do magic or acrobats, or perform any other talent is asked to call Sandy Smith, 474-6127, for more information. The first rehearsal will be held at the Youth Center, multi-purpose room, Wednesday, July 23, at 7 p.m. Those needing musical accompaniment should bring a tape.

Greenbelt Co-op Wins In National Contest

Greenbelt Co-op (the grocery store) has won the Best Display award in a national contest sponsored by Procter & Gamble and Special Olympics. Their prize is a donation of $1,000 to the Maryland State Chapter of Special Olympics made in the name of Greenbelt Co-op by Procter & Gamble.

To recognize the effort and participation of Greenbelt Co-op, a plaque was presented to the store's managers on Wednesday, July 16.

New Rules for Public Hearings Suggested To the Editor:

It seems to this veteran observer of city council meetings that there needs to be some prompt improvement and refinement in the conduct of public hearings. There is the not so small matter of courtesy and fairness to the captive audience.

As I had to leave the recent public hearing on the proposed Greenbelt Museum at 11 p.m., I was astounded to hear the next day that a critical verbal salvo was lobbed at the opponents of the museum by a council member.

Since I was not present, a requested replaying of the cable TV tape verified that the aforesaid citizens, who took the time and effort on one of the hottest evenings on record to present their opinions, were verbally chastised as to their "negative approach" and were counseled to reconsider their positions.

Is there not a current council rule to the effect that no council member may impugn the motives of a fellow council member? If the mayor did not rule the remarks out of order, as I believe they were, what rule is in place to prevent another incident like this?

I recently testified at the county council's public hearing on bond authorization. Although I am sure that most of the members did not agree with me on the desirability of breaking up the road bond referendum into geographical segments for the enlightenment of the voters in November, I was thanked and received no advice or rebuke. Incidentally, no comments pro or con on the disposition of the issue were made at the session. Perhaps this method may be the way to go.

Summer Athletes in Danger To the Editor:

Those who have recently taken up strenuous exercising, particularly running and jogging, should know that running in hot weather is definitely dangerous and can lead to injury and death. The only two deaths that I can recall of runners in the Washington area who were running in a race occurred a few years ago in suburban Virginia on an extremely hot day with high humidity. Both runners became disoriented and lost and went off the course.

Greenbelters have an ideal situation for running around the 1 1/4 mile Greenbelt Lake because water is available from the fountain and you can run one mile in the shade by turning around at the mile markers. If you run in the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center or the Greenbelt National Park you should plan your run in such a way that you will be able to get water from a stream to pour over yourself or carry drinking water with you. The rule is to run slower and shorter distance in very hot, humid weather. Bob Ryan of Channel 4 TV News has published a HUMITURE CHART showing that combinations of temperature and humidity of 105-130 (90 degree temperature and 70% humidity equals 106 HUMITURE) with a danger of sunstroke, heat cramps, or heat exhaustion likely and heatstroke possible with prolonged exposure and physical activity. You should drink plenty of water before, during and after running. Experienced race directors always provide water.

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

Three girls, between ages of 5 and 8, were the victims of an indecent exposure incident on July 6 at about 4 p.m. at the end of Centerway near Nyman Realty. The suspect approached the girls, patted one on the buttocks and then exposed himself. He then left on foot in the direction of the Roosevelt Center. The suspect was described as a white male, in his 20's, about 5'7" and weighing about 140 lbs. He had red hair and was wearing glasses, a light-colored shirt and blue jeans.

On July 7 two female juveniles reported being solicited by two males in a passing car. The first suspect was described as a white male, 25-30 years old, 5'10" wearing sun glasses. The passenger was a black male. The vehicle was described as a silver 4-door car, possibly at Datsun. The incident occurred on Ridge Road near Green Ridge House at about 4 p.m.

Through investigation by Det./Pfc. William Allwang two persons have been arrested for a strong-arm robbery which occurred in the 9300 block of Edmonston Road on June 23. The juvenile was charged with robbery and held at Boys' Village in Cheltenham. The adult male, a non-resident, was charged and released pending trial.

A woman inside a store in Greenway Shopping Center was the victim of a indecent exposure. A man approached her in an aisle and exposed himself. The woman followed the man to his vehicle, took a description and license number and reported the incident to the police. Within hours, Officer David Lucia arrested a non-resident male for the offense.

A woman from Pennsylvania was robbed of her purse in the parking lot of the Holiday Inn on Hanover Drive on July 5 at 9:50 p.m. The suspects hit the victim, took her purse and fled on foot.

Both were described as black males in their early 20's, about 6' tall. One was wearing gray pants and a green shirt with yellow sleeves.

While returning home from the fireworks, a woman was assaulted at Research and Hillside Roads. No injuries were sustained. The identity of the suspect is known and warrants are expected.

During the fireworks, the lugs and wheel hubs were removed from the car of a resident who had parked his car at the rear of the Greenbelt Baptist Church.

On July 3 between 3 and 4 p.m. an unlawful entry was made into a residence in the 8200 block of Mandan Court. The suspect used a spare key which the victim kept outside the home. Personal property was removed.

During the night of July 4 a kiosk in Beltway Plaza Mall was unlawfully entered and money was removed.

which he was not then a member) had decided not to hold a referendum on building priorities at the time of last council election. He felt that if a referendum were held on the museum, other projects to be funded from the bond issue should be included.

Council Comments

At the end of the hearing, each council member commented on the hearing and several gave their own perspectives. Weidenfeld thanked the participants for their good commentary and said the council members weigh these views along with those gathered in other conversations with people in the community and then they decide; he emphasized that there are never any easy answers.

White, who called public hearings in Greenbelt "a cherished event," said the council needs to know more about the ongoing commitment of the support group. He urged that more thought be given to its programs and that the city's commitment be measured against a real balance sheet. However, he also maintained that "if we are going to have a museum" in a GHI unit, the present opportunity should not be lost.

Bram, who characterized the hearing as a "healthy battle," said that she strongly felt that those who "have a negative approach to the idea of a museum" should "give yourselves a chance to think it over." Many times, she said, "we get wrapped up in ourselves and look inwardly and don't know how to give and I think we have to consider here about giving to the future." She mentioned the support among the professionals present and, in what appeared to be a direct expression of support for the museum, she said the professionals "sold me."

Isaacs emphasized that the dream of having a GHI home as a museum goes back many years and that there seems to be a "window of opportunity" that needs to be seriously addressed. He maintained that "we have to know where we've been to know where we're going." He said that he is favorable to seeing a GHI home purchased. However, he spoke of a need to understand the financial commitment from both the side of the city and the support group. He urged the FOGM to come up with real financial scenarios, "worst case and best case," so that the council can know what it is dealing with.

Council member Edward Putens agreed that the plans need to be spelled out but he said he had seen a lot of projects in this city succeed without detailed plans. He said he would "make no bones about it," he is in favor of purchasing the GHI home. He said, "Who are we kidding? Without GHI we wouldn't be sitting here today. We wouldn't have this council. We wouldn't have the facilities before us." He said he thinks it is the role of government to assist when opportunities such as this occur.

RLDP PROGRAM FOR GHI MEMBERS

As a service to GHI members, GHI offers a Rehab Loan Deferral Program (RLDP). Under this program eligible members can defer part of their rehab charges. Thus these members have extra money available each month to use in other ways, for example for groceries, doctor bills, savings, vacations, clothing, electric bills, etc. Many participants find it useful for handling changing financial situations such as retirement, a change from full-time to part-time work, or money problems. The NEW income eligibility limits are as follows:

in Household	Income Limit
1	$19,250
2	22,000
3	24,750
4	27,500
5	29,200
6	30,950
7	32,650
8 plus	34,000

For information about joining this program, contact the GHI Member Services Coordinator Maureen Osborne (474-4161).
